The screenshot shows a Google search for "doors". At the top, the search bar contains "doors" and shows "About 876,000,000 results (0.73 seconds)". Below the search bar are navigation tabs for "All", "Shopping", "Images", "Maps", "Videos", "More", "Settings", and "Tools".

The "Shopping" section is active, displaying five sponsored door products:

- Arazzinni Shaker 1 Primed Interior... $130.00
- PVC Amber Strip Door Kits $58.27
- Arazzinni Alta Interior Door... $280.00
- Arazzinni Shaker 1G Vetro Interior... $281.00
- Arazzinni Palladio 4H Modern... $199.00

The "Top stories" section features three news items:

- Interior Department spending $139,000 to upgrade doors in Secretary Zinke's office (Chicago Tribune, 8 hours ago)
- Ryan Zinke's office door at Interior Dept getting $139,000 upgrade (USA TODAY, 9 hours ago)
- Dem mocks Zinke's $139K doors by asking for Game of Thrones office remodel (TheHill, 8 hours ago)

The "Knowledge panel" on the right is titled "Door" and includes a definition: "A door is a moving mechanism used to block off and allow access to, an entrance to or within an enclosed space, such as a building, room or vehicle. Wikipedia". Below the definition are "People also search for" suggestions: Window, House, Kitchen, Furniture, and Bathroom. At the bottom of the panel, it says "See results about The Doors (Rock band)" with a list of songs and albums.

The image shows a screenshot of a Wikipedia article page for "Keyword research". The page includes the Wikipedia logo, navigation tabs (Article, Talk, Read, Edit, View history), and a search bar. The main content area shows the title "Keyword research" and a sub-header "From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia". The first sentence of the article is "Keyword research is a practice" followed by a large black redaction bar. A second redaction bar covers the rest of the sentence. A third redaction bar covers the beginning of the next sentence, which ends with "to achieve better rankings in search engines." followed by another redaction bar. Two large red arrows point from the bottom of the slide towards the redacted text in the article.
